LIFE IS BETTER WHERE EARTH AND SKY MEET

JUNE - JULY 2016

A PARADISE IN THE DESERT

At first glance, Sierra Vista may seem like a simple desert but a short walk into the Huachuca Mountains will dispel that myth.

Flowing water, changing colors in the fall, and an abundance of wildlife all offer hints that something special is happening here. Delve a little deeper into this uncommon sky island habitat and you'll learn that we share our home with a greater diversity of plants and animals than almost anywhere else on the planet.

That's what attracted the attention of National Geographic, which featured the Sierra Vista area in a recent television segment on its Nat Geo WILD channel, highlighting our remarkable variety of hummingbirds.

To quote the segment, "The sky islands are the closest thing to paradise in North America...It's one of the most diverse ecosystems on Earth, second only to Brazil's rain forests, because it's where two mountain ranges and two deserts merge."

The San Pedro River adds to the rich natural diversity, acting as a migratory lifeline for more than 300 species of birds, 200 species of butterflies, and 20 species of bats. More than 80 species of mammals and 65 species of reptiles and amphibians are also found along this lush riparian corridor. The many canyons leading into the Huachucas, including the Nature Conservancy's popular Ramsey Canyon Preserve, are also havens for birds and wildlife living in the cooler climates and lush flora.

DID YOU KNOW?

Southeast Arizona is home to several of Arizona's 13 species of rattlesnakes, including the ridge-nosed rattlesnake. The state reptile of Arizona, the ridge-nosed rattlesnake is actually more common in Mexico and only comes as far north as the Sierra Vista area.

Beavers were once extremely prevalent in the San Pedro River but by 1900 they were virtually eliminated by fur trappers and farmers. Thanks to reintroduction efforts, some beavers once again roam the waters of the San Pedro and their dams help slow the river's flow, providing increased habitat for a variety of plants and animals.

FROM THE MAYOR

Being Stewards of Our Environment

by Rick Mueller, Mayor

Environmental stewardship and being a leader in water conservation is a key component of the City Council's Strategic Leadership Plan, and that's been the case for many years. Finding the balance between water used by people and water needed to sustain our rich and diverse natural environment ensures that Sierra Vista can grow responsibly.

"We recognize the importance of caring for our environment and remain committed to responsible water use to ensure our community, and our rich natural resources, continue to thrive."

Working in partnership with Fort Huachuca, the City of Sierra Vista has accomplished much to conserve water and recharge our local aquifer. This remarkable partnership with the Post helps sustain Fort Huachuca's vital military missions and is a major piece of the work that earned the City a national Association of Defense Communities Community Excellence Award this year.

I will be honored to accept this award on the City's behalf in June at the Defense Communities National Summit in Washington, D.C. While those of us who have been part of the work know just how much the City and its partners have accomplished in the last 20 years, it's important to see that these efforts can serve as an example for other communities throughout the country.

I'm proud to look back on the development of the Environmental Operations Park, which has recharged nearly 10 billion gallons of treated wastewater back into the aquifer since it was built in 2002. Sierra Vista led the way once again in 2013, becoming the first community in the nation to adopt the Environmental Protection Agency's WaterSense guidelines as official standards for new homes.

The City also partners with The Cochise Water Project, WaterWise, and the Upper San Pedro Partnership on many water projects that include rainwater harvesting, artificial turf installation, and a toilet rebate program that the City started in 2001. Our City facilities on Coronado Drive now feature a full complement of water conservation practices to include green infrastructure work that helps ensure storm water reaches our local aquifer.

We recognize the importance of caring for our environment and remain committed to responsible water use to ensure our community, and our rich natural resources, continue to thrive.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Expanding Brand Recognition

by Chuck Potucek, City Manager

Our strapline, "Extraordinary Skies. Uncommon Ground." conveys a compelling story that gets to the heart of our community and what sets us apart. We live in a community that has powerful assets to attract tourists, visitors, businesses, and new residents. The brand will build a reputation based on those assets.

In the coming months, local residents and even people in other parts of the state will see some of the most eye-catching applications of Sierra Vista's new brand to date, building upon the brand recognition that has been cultivated over the last 10 months.

As the City rotates new vehicles into its fleet and updates some old ones, the brand is being applied to their design. Our first new refuse trucks have just arrived and look fantastic, as does the rebranded cars that will be used on City business trips throughout the region and state. New Ford Explorers for the Police Department sport their own black and white application of the brand and will soon be out on the streets as well.

While the refuse and police vehicles will have an immediate impact in sharing the look and feel for the brand with local residents, the cars will help bring exposure in out of-area tourism markets like Phoenix, and will also be used when the City leads familiarization tours introducing travel writers to our great community. Phoenicians will also see Sierra Vista's new look in an eye-catching ad that will be placed on the light rail in June, a perfect time to inspire an escape from the Phoenix summer heat.

Each new implementation of the brand ties into every aspect of the City's communications, from how it speaks to its residents, to how it entices people from out of town to visit. Each new step reinforces Sierra Vista's identity as a thriving 21st century community with a bright future.

GET ACQUAINTED

by Mary Jacobs, Assistant City Manager

Sometimes a job just feels like work but if you're lucky it's also a passion. Firefighter Michael Quarto found his calling with Sierra Vista Fire & Medical Services back in 2007, while Tara Cepeda sparked a budding love of library science just two years ago when she started working at the Sierra Vista Public Library. Let's get to know Michael and Tara a bit better!

Michael Quarto

Since Michael Quarto joined the City as a firefighter, he has been certified as a paramedic, taken on the coordination of the child safety seat program, married a former EMT with the department, and now has three beautiful children. Mike started as a reservist in 2007, and was immediately certain he wanted to be on the department full time. He loves that each call often requires creativity and always requires teamwork. Mike was a certified car seat installer long before he had children of his own. He applies for grants to fund free seats, schedules over 100 installations annually, and is constantly looking for ways to reach more parents to raise awareness. Mike was also recently named the Lead Hazmat Technician for the department, part of the City's Police/Fire Special Response Team. He's using his grant-writing skills to seek new equipment for the City, and is part of a regional team available for hazardous materials incidents. Mike and his wife, Trina, have been married for five years and met while they were both reserve firefighters. Their three small children range in age from infant to 4 years old, and they are all the apple of their eyes! Mike grew up in Sierra Vista, and both his and Trina's parents are nearby to spoil their grandkids. Mike is a third generation U of A Wildcat with a BA in linguistics, though he is quick to admit he hasn't had much opportunity to practice his broken Japanese.

Tara Cepeda

After 18 years in Florida, Tara Cepeda came to Sierra Vista to be with her mother and the City was fortunate to hire her as a library assistant nearly two years ago. It's her first job with a library and Tara is hooked! She has spent most of her working career in retail, and assisting patrons with locating books, getting a library card, checking out materials, or answering questions at the reference desk has been wonderfully rewarding. Tara loves seeing the diversity of people using the City's beautiful library, from young to old, students to retirees. She assists with a variety of special programs as well, including computer classes, the summer reading program, and lending some of the library's unique materials like telescopes, bicycles, and hiking backpacks. Originally from Long Island, New York, Tara joins the rest of us in the area in bragging about the amazing Sierra Vista weather. She enjoys taking her two terrier mix dogs for walks among the mountain views of the community. She also likes doing crafts, drawing and painting, and even studied graphic design in college. While Tara has a second job which limits her free time, she has certainly taken advantage of her City job to start reading more! She has also started thinking about library science as a future college degree. Those who are in the library field will tell you that it's a calling and it seems Tara may have discovered that passion herself.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Sierra Vista Hosts Travel Writers

Sierra Vista had an opportunity to spotlight some of its best features recently when the City's tourism office hosted five international and three U.S. travel writers.

The international writers traveled from Germany, England, Canada, China, and Mexico — all strong markets for international visitors — while the U.S. writers publish in widely distributed media and blogs to hundreds of thousands of readers. The additional publicity earned, often in markets that would be cost prohibitive otherwise, is valued in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The tours, called "FAM Tours" (short for "familiarization") give the tourism office the opportunity spend one-on-one time with writers to ensure that they discover Sierra Vista's myriad visitor amenities. FAM Tours are tailored for each writer so that they discover Sierra Vista in ways that match their editorial focus, such as outdoor activities, wildlife, history, and food.

"We often work in partnership with the Arizona Office of Tourism, the Cochise County Tourism Council, and our neighbors in Pima and Santa Cruz counties," says Judy Hector, marketing and public affairs manager for the City. "While the City's focus is always on Sierra Vista, we know that visitors don't observe geopolitical boundaries. They go where the fun is, and working with our partners helps writers tell the best story about Sierra Vista and our region."

"We wouldn't have successful FAM Tours without the help of our local businesses," Hector says. "Hotels, restaurants, and attractions are terrific at stepping up and showing what a friendly, interesting, and unique place Sierra Vista is."

PUBLIC SAFETY

Common Sense Tips to Secure Your Home

Burglars often look for easy targets, so making your home a little more difficult to enter can prevent break-ins. From installing quality doors to being careful in sharing information on social media, these tips from the Sierra Vista Police Department can help make your home safer.

DOORS

- Remember to remove the control for your garage door from your car just as you would remove your house or car keys.
- Install solid, hardwood doors, or metal doors, with strong frames.
- All doors leading into the home, including the door between the garage and house, should be secured by quality deadbolt locks. Using a 6-inch strike plate with six long screws and a double-cylinder deadbolt is best.

WINDOWS

- Protect all windows that can be easily accessed.
- Windows that are vulnerable may require the installation of security bars or metal grillwork.
- Keep windows partially or completely covered day and night.

LOCKS

- Locks must be used to be effective. Even when you are home, use your locks.
- Never hide an extra key for your door under a mat, in a flower pot, or in any other easily-accessible place.
- Consider having a trustworthy friend or neighbor hold a spare key for you.

LIGHTING

- Use lighting to create the illusion of an occupied home at all times. Full 360-degree lighting around the home is most effective.

ALARMS

Do your research. Investigate the company's response time to alarm calls. Be sure the alarm company will monitor your system at the times that you want protection.

DOGS

Dogs can be a good alternative or a supplement to an alarm system. Criminals often avoid homes with barking dogs but dog doors can also be used to gain entry into the home.

LANDSCAPING

Increase visibility by trimming all bushes and hedges.

SOCIAL MEDIA

Criminals can find easy targets online. Be aware that what you post online alerts others of your location and other information that criminals can use against home owners.

VACATION HOUSE CHECK

When you are away from home, your best option is to have a trusted friend, neighbor or relative check your house. The Sierra Vista Police Department also offers a "Vacation House Check" program that includes a personal check of your home. For more information, contact the Sierra Vista Police Department at (520) 452-7500.

Tips When Encountering a Stray Dog

Regardless of your experience with dogs, encountering a stray can be a dangerous situation. It's best to play it safe and follow these tips outlined by www.barkbusters.com.

Never approach a stray dog. Strays are almost always frightened and they could also carry diseases.

Walk with awareness. Even in familiar surroundings, scan the area, near and far.

Seek a safe haven. If you see a stray dog approaching from a distance, look for a place that's secure. Step inside a fenced area, enter a place of business, or knock on a neighbor's door.

Carry food as a distraction. Pepper spray does not always work and can exacerbate the situation. Carrying treats or a pocket full of kibble along with you to distract the dog is a much better option.

If it's not possible to avoid an encounter, follow these guidelines to protect yourself:

- Don't run. Hold your arms in front of you and clasp your hands together. Keep your eyes focused downward. Let the dog sniff you but do not stick your hand out. When the dog leaves, back away slowly.
- If you have been knocked down by a dog, don't try to get up. Roll into a ball. Cover your face and head with your arms, keep your legs together, and pull your knees up to your chest. Don't get up and don't move until the dog has gone away.

After the dog has gone, call the Nancy J. Brua Animal Care Center at (520) 458-4151. By doing so, you will give the dog the best chance for survival by getting it off the streets and into a safe place.

Explore Garden Canyon

We live in one of the most biodiverse regions in North America and Garden Canyon is one of the best spots to see this variety of plants and animals in action.

This lush canyon features flowing water and all kinds of critters. A popular birding destination, Garden Canyon is a hotspot for Montezuma Quail, Elegant Trogons, Gould's Turkey, Painted Redstarts, and Gray Hawks. Recently, a Sinola Wren, an extremely rare sighting in the U.S., has attracted many birders to the canyon.

But it's not all about the birds, the canyon often teems with butterflies, attracted to its many wildflowers, and is home to many reptiles, amphibians, and mammals like javelina, coatimundi, and black bear. It was also home to ancient Native Americans, dating back to 600 C.E. The Garden Canyon Pictograph Site has 53 pictographs from Native American tribes as old as the Hohokam and Mogollon, plus some more recent ones created by the Apache in the 1700s.

Perhaps you're an expert and wish to pass on your knowledge to other "wood"-be carvers? Well then come down to the Ethel H. Berger Center every Wednesday and Friday at 1:00 p.m. to join the Thunder Mountain Woodcarvers group who put knives to wood to create beautiful and functional carved items.

Sierra Vista Martial Arts is a blend of Chinese, Okinawan, and Western martial arts developed by the instructors. Instruction is based on forms (kata) and their analysis, extensive partner training, individual and small group study, and exploration of presented material. The goal is to train thinking, analytical martial artists who can see beyond the confines of the course material and integrate them with concepts taught by other systems. As such, cross training and the study of other systems is encouraged. The focus is on civilian self defense, not on the modern sporting versions of martial arts.

LIVING WITH WILDLIFE

Rattlesnake Safety Tips

WATCH YOUR STEP!

Rattlesnake colors and patterns allow them to blend with their surroundings so they often seem invisible. It is always best to look where you place your feet and hands. A flashlight should be carried at night, especially on warm nights when rattlesnakes are very active.

WHAT TO DO IF A RATTLESNAKE BITE OCCURS

Do

- Remain calm and reassure the victim.
- Remove all jewelry, watches, etc. from affected area.
- Immobilize extremity and keep at level below the heart.
- Decrease total body activity as is feasible.
- Move victim to medical facility without delay.

Do Not

- Apply ice to bite area.
- Use incision of any kind.
- Use a constriction band or tourniquet.
- Administer alcohol or drugs.
- Use electric shock treatment.

Be Bear Aware

Never approach a wild bear. Black bears usually avoid people, but if they start to associate people with food they may become aggressive. If a bear is in your yard or neighborhood, immediately contact the Arizona Game and Fish office in your area.

IF A BEAR APPROACHES YOU:

- Make yourself as large and imposing as possible. Stand upright and wave your arms, jacket, or other items, and make loud noises.
- Do not run and never play dead.
- Give the bear a chance to leave the area.
- If the bear does not leave, stay calm, continue facing it, and slowly back away.

Who you gonna call?

The coatimundi, "coati" for short, is a raccoon-like mammal rarely seen in the United States but sometimes sighted in the mountain ranges of southeastern Arizona. Unlike ringtail cats, Arizona's state mammal, coatis are more active during the day then at night, leading to more sightings.

Wildcats are not just the U of A mascot. Also known as bobcats, these 12- to 30-pound felines outnumber mountain lions in Arizona. A stubby tail earned them the "bobcat" moniker.

The Arizona tarantula is relatively docile. Although venomous, it takes quite a lot to provoke a bite and, unlike other tarantulas worldwide, the venom is mostly harmless to humans.
